ISSUE: 2019-20 Budget Summary (including summary of Initiatives)

Talking points:

- Health expenses grow to $1.753 billion in 2019-20 (excluding Territorial capital grants).
- This represents an increase of:
 - $70 million (4.17%) on the published 2018-19 Budget; or
 - $43 million (2.53%) on the 2018-19 estimated outcome.
- The 2019-20 Budget Papers (Health Statements) shows the former Health Directorate split between the new ACT Health Directorate and Canberra Health Services.
- For the purposes of the 2018-19 estimated outcome, the former Health Directorate's original budget shows against Canberra Health Services. This reflects that technically the former Health Directorate's name was changed to Canberra Health Services and a new entity was create for the ACT Health Directorate.
- Controlled Recurrent Payments (Appropriation) is only received by the ACT Health Directorate and the Local Hospital Network going forward. The Local Hospital Network will purchase services from the ACT's public hospitals including Canberra Health Services.
- Canberra Health Services will receive Capital Injection directly from ACT Treasury to undertake capital works.
- The 2019-20 Budget allocates $27.8 million to health service delivery (including Health Protection Services and Calvary Public Hospital) and $9.2 million to health policy, research, administration and support services inclusive of $2.9 million for ACT Health Core IT Systems.
- New health service delivery over the forward estimates (four years) will be $194.7 million.

Health Central Provision	$26.187m	$60.009m	$105.041m

- There are no significant new savings targets contained in this Budget, however, Canberra Health Services will be required to internally fund $1.213 million towards the Emergency Department Doctor increase initiative per annum.
- Savings listed in the Appropriation tables for insurance and workers' compensation premiums will be achieved through reduced billing by ACT Treasury.

ISSUE: 2. Summary of 2019-20 Federal Budget – Impact on ACT Health

Talking points:

- The ACT looks forward to working with the Commonwealth and other states and territories to progress tangible and sustainable health sector outcomes which can improve access to affordable and high-quality health care.
- The ACT Government welcomes the funding announced in the 2019-20 Budget including:
 - expansion of Clare Holland House ($4 million);
 - more clinical trials ($0.6 million over 3 years); and
 - an expansion of the Intensive Care Unit at Canberra Hospital ($13.5 million over 4 years).
- The ACT is seeking further clarity from the Commonwealth relating to the Budget announcements made through media releases, including:
 - a second Headspace centre ($3.4 million);
 - a new eating disorders centre ($13.5 million);
 - youth mental health and suicide prevention ($6 million); and
 - drug and alcohol addiction programs, community withdrawal support services ($7.9 million) and more residential beds ($4 million).
- The Commonwealth funding for adult dental care will be provided for only one year in 2019-20. All states and territories seek an ongoing commitment from the Commonwealth for this funding, as raised by the NSW Minister in previous COAG Health Council meetings.

ISSUE: 2019-20 Community Budget Consultations: Non-Funding of Initiatives

Talking points:

- The annual Budget consultation process provides Canberrans, community groups and local organisations with an opportunity to suggest how and where the ACT Government should invest funding to boost services and infrastructure.
- Many of the community budget submissions contained considered and worthwhile ideas.
- A number of the initiatives that are being funded in this budget relate to issues raised during the community consultations.
- However, in other instances, as a result of the prevailing financial environment, the ACT Health Directorate was not able to fund the initiatives, in addition to funding strategic priority areas for the 2019-20 Budget.
- In addition, the submissions received will be revisited as part of the preparation for the 2020-2021 budget cycle.

Background Information

- The 2019-20 Budget Consultations, conducted by ACT Treasury, closed on 31 October 2018. 141 submissions were received from individuals and organisations.
- Please refer to GBC18/901 for analysis of all community budget consultation proposals.

- The annual Budget Consultations process provides Canberrans, community groups and local organisations with an opportunity to suggest how and where the ACT Government should invest funding to boost services and infrastructure.
- This process attracted a range of proposals, the majority related to general practice and community-based healthcare, rather than hospitals and specialist care services.
- The community budget proposals that directly correlate to initiatives that are being funded in this budget are described below:

Aged and Palliative Care

- Council of the Ageing called for improved access to palliative care in residential aged care.
- This Budget provides funding for two nurse practitioners to implement a proactive support program to improve palliative and end-of-life care coordination of older people living in residential aged care facilities.

Implementing recommendations from the Royal Commission

- Parentline ACT sought funding to pilot a new program in response to the recommendations of the recent Royal Commission into Organisational Responses to Child Sexual Abuse, to support parents either who were victims themselves of child sexual abuse or to assist parents that want to take more active steps to prevent their own children becoming victims of sexual abuse.
- The Government will implement health-related recommendations from the Royal Commission into Institutional Responses to Child Sexual Abuse. The Child Safe, Child Friendly and Child Aware Framework will be implemented across ACT hospitals and health services in response to the relevant Royal Commission's recommendations.

- This Budget provides $87,000 for a 12-month detailed scoping study to consider the ACT Government LGBTIQ Strategy and its implications for health services in the ACT.

Preventive health

- Living Streets Canberra called for all Canberrans to be supported and encouraged to choose walking for everyday journeys to improve their health and the liveability of Canberra.
- Winnunga Nimmityjah Aboriginal Health and Community Services sought funding for the recurrent funding of a healthy weight program.
- Council on the Ageing ACT requested funding for a strength training program to enhance wellbeing, management of musculoskeletal conditions and independence.
- Capital Health Network (CHN) called for funding to deliver training for a GP-led weight management program to decrease the burden of overweight and obesity on the ACT health system. CHN also called for funding support to increase participation rates in cancer screening programs.
- Australian Capital Territory Council of Social Services requested preventative health interventions aimed at the social determinants of health such as interventions on food security in the ACT.
- The ACT Preventive Health and Wellbeing Plan, currently under development by the Health Directorate, will focus on the action areas that influence the future health of all Canberrans, including specifically addressing the modifiable risk factors for chronic disease such as healthy weight, nutrition, physical activity, tobacco and alcohol.

Future-proofing Canberra's health and hospital services

The 2019-20 ACT Budget delivers major new investment in infrastructure and services to future-proof our health system and help meet the healthcare needs of the entire Canberra region into the coming decade.

Growing health infrastructure

From 2019-20 we will invest $848 million in new and upgraded health infrastructure for Canberra.

At the Canberra Hospital campus, the major new Surgical Procedures, Interventional Radiology and Emergency (SPIRE) Centre will provide state-of-the-art critical care to meet the acute health care needs of our region into the future.

The SPIRE Centre will deliver 114 Emergency Department treatment spaces – 39 more than are currently available at the Canberra Hospital, as well as 60 ICU beds – doubling the number currently available.

SPIRE will include four new paediatric ICU beds and a family zone to provide support services for families who have children in the ICU. It will also deliver 22 new state-of-the-art operating theatres – nine more than are currently available, including hybrid theatres and interventional radiology theatres that will support the most advanced medical technology and techniques in caring for Canberrans.

In addition to SPIRE, we are investing in more beds across Canberra Health Services to help reduce waiting times and ensure that Canberrans receive the critical care they need, when the need it. This will include resourcing four additional intensive care unit beds and 12 beds for inpatient services in medicine, surgery and aged care.

We are also significantly expanding the Centenary Hospital for Women and Children which is co-located with Canberra Hospital, to support women and young people needing maternity services and other specialist care.

We will boost elective surgery at Calvary Public Hospital Bruce by expanding theatres at the hospital, and add more doctors and nurses to staff the new Emergency Department when the expansion we delivered through last year's Budget is complete.

We are building a new Walk-in Centre in Dickson to provide faster access to care for minor injury and illness for people living and working in Canberra's Inner North. This will bring Canberra's network of Walk-In Centres to five across Gungahlin, Weston Creek, Belconnen, Tuggeranong and now Dickson.

More staff and stronger health services

The 2019 Budget will invest in more services and specialists to help keep people out of hospital, reduce waiting times, remove people from waiting lists and give Canberrans access to more timely care. This includes a new program to develop better integrated pathways and improve health outcomes for people with complex and ongoing chronic health conditions, which will be co-designed with general practitioners.

We will deliver more doctors at the Canberra Hospital's Emergency Department to help reduce waiting times and respond to increasing demand. We are delivering another Interventional Radiology suite to provide state of the art care for cancer and stroke patients and funding new and upgraded MRIs. We are also boosting pharmacy services so that people who are treated at the Canberra Hospital can get access to their medications more quickly and easily.

Through the Budget we will make a significant investment in specialist services supporting Canberrans with chronic and ongoing conditions. This includes expanded services for childhood and gestational diabetes, dermatology, rheumatology and the Fracture Clinic at the Canberra Hospital, as well as an expansion of the urology service at Calvary Public Hospital Bruce. We will also deliver a new and simpler model to access maternity services, further boosting our support for expectant mums and families.

We will also make significant investments in medical and health research and in new technology to support patients and our workforce, including the development of a Digital Health Record to support Canberrans care in our public health system. The ACT Government is committed to delivering a strong public health system with a positive work culture for all our employees. We will make a substantial investment to implement the recommendations of the Independent Review into the Workplace Culture within ACT Public Health Services, promoting a healthier culture, reducing inappropriate workplace behaviour and re-engaging staff. We will also invest in funding to implement the Nurses and Midwives: Towards a Safer Culture Strategy.

More mental health care for Canberrans

The 2019 Budget includes more support for mental health services and people experiencing mental illness so they can get access to a better range of treatment options.

We will deliver more staff resources for the Adult Mental Health Unit at Canberra Hospital to enable a more comprehensive psychosocial approach to treatment, care and support for patients. This investment will also support workforce development and improved clinical care standards.

We will expand the Mental Health Consultation Liaison Service to operate seven days a week, providing more support for people with mental illness at Canberra Hospital with a particular focus on people admitted into medical and surgical wards and those presenting to the Emergency Department.

And we will establish an Eating Disorders Specialist Clinical Hub and a community-based intervention support service to expand the range of eating disorder services available in the ACT and make these available to more Canberrans.

Through the Budget we will also start work on designing a Police, Ambulance and Clinician Early Response (PACER) model which will enable our first responders to provide better support for people experiencing acute mental health incidents. This will bring together police, ambulance paramedics and mental health clinicians to support the safe assessment and treatment of people experiencing acute mental health episodes without the need for admission to hospital.

More support for people overcoming addiction

In response to community feedback about growing areas of need across Canberra's health services, we will step up our investment in drug and alcohol services to help tackle addiction and see more people get the support they need.

We will establish a new opioid maintenance treatment clinic in Canberra's north. This will deliver more timely access to treatment for those living on the northside to help them engage with the program. We will also undertake a feasibility study and needs assessment for a medically supervised injecting facility in the ACT and continue to support Canberrans whose drug and alcohol use is a factor in their involvement in the criminal justice system.

We will continue to partner with the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander community to develop a culturally appropriate residential service supporting drug and alcohol rehabilitation for people in the ACT. This future service will be designed to complement existing services.

We will also recruit new specialised nursing staff to enhance drug and alcohol services at the Alexander Maconochie Centre. This will expand the existing opiate replacement treatment service and provide a range of additional drug and alcohol services. This will enable services to be delivered seven days a week so that we can better support detainees to deal with their addiction issues while they are in custody.

Through the 2019-20 ACT Budget we are building a better healthcare system that can meet the needs of our growing community today and in the years to come – delivering a healthier future for all Canberrans.

SPIRE Centre set to transform The Canberra Hospital

The new Surgical Procedures, Interventional Radiology and Emergency (SPIRE) Centre will future-proof hospital facilities for Canberra and our region by transforming the acute health services delivered at The Canberra Hospital.

The SPIRE Centre will deliver 114 Emergency Department treatment spaces – 39 more than are currently available at The Canberra Hospital, as well as 60 ICU beds – doubling the number currently available.

SPIRE will include four new paediatric ICU beds and a family zone to provide support services for families who have children in the ICU.

It will also deliver 22 new state-of-the-art operating theatres – nine more than are currently available, including hybrid theatres and interventional radiology theatres that will support the most advanced medical technology and techniques in caring for Canberrans.

Chief Minister Andrew Barr said the delivery of SPIRE forms part of the ACT Government's plan to future-proof Canberra's healthcare system to meet ongoing growth in demand for high quality, free public healthcare.

"The SPIRE Centre was one of our most significant commitments at the 2016 election. We are getting on with delivering it because we understand how important it is to be building now to meet Canberra's healthcare needs into the future."

Minister for Health and Wellbeing Meegan Fitzharris said the original scope of the SPIRE Centre has been expanded as a result of consultation with the clinical workforce and we look forward to that continuing as Canberra Health Services (CHS) works through the finer details.

“ACT Health and CHS have engaged with clinicians extensively and we’ve listened,” Minister Fitzharris said.

“The SPIRE Centre we are announcing today will be bigger and better than first planned and will provide the best outcomes for our community and for our current and future health workforce.

“Many of the key aspects of SPIRE have been boosted, with this state-of-the-art critical care and surgical facility able to meet the acute healthcare needs of our growing and ageing community well into the future.”

This significant investment by the ACT Government will be complemented by a new Australian National University (ANU) building that will boost the teaching, training and research presence on The Canberra Hospital campus.

“This investment by the ANU means Canberra and the SPIRE Centre will be very attractive to the best and brightest students and clinicians nationally and internationally who want to do their medical training and research in a modern, state-of-the-art facility.”

Canberra Health Services Chief Executive Officer Bernadette McDonald said she was excited about the expansion in the scope of SPIRE and the ANU’s contribution.

“The expanded SPIRE project will be fantastic for the ACT community as well as for Canberra Health Services staff,” Ms McDonald said.

“The additional theatres, intensive care beds and ED cubicles will help future-proof us for demand that is to come.

“While we have all these services now, SPIRE builds on our existing capacity through a project that will be custom-designed on the advice of our clinicians to improve safety, patient experience and the working environment for our staff.”

The new Surgical Procedures, Interventional Radiology and Emergency Centre (SPIRE) will be located at the eastern end of the Canberra Hospital campus. Preparatory site works for SPIRE will get underway with decanting and site works commencing this year, with construction set for completion in 2023-24.

Further information on the new features of SPIRE is available at: <https://www.health.act.gov.au/about-our-health-system/planning-future/surgical-procedures-interventional-radiology-and-emergency>

Through the 2019-20 ACT Budget we are building for Canberra’s future by investing in the hospital and healthcare facilities our growing city needs – today and in the years to come.

More services and elective surgery at Calvary Public Hospital

More elective surgeries and an expanded Emergency Department will be the focus of a major new investment in Calvary Public Hospital Bruce as the ACT Government continues to future proof our health care system.

The number of operating theatres at Calvary Public Hospital Bruce will be boosted to enable more people to undergo elective surgery at the hospital. The capacity of the Emergency Department will also grow, with more doctors and nurses to staff the new ED when its expansion is complete.

Minister for Health and Wellbeing Meegan Fitzharris said the government was committed to expanding the capacity of health services across Canberra.

“As our city grows, so too does the demand for hospital and health services,” Minister Fitzharris said.

“This funding package will deliver a much-needed boost for Calvary Public Hospital on the northside of Canberra.

“It will provide funding for 81 new doctors, nurses, administration and other health professionals at Calvary Hospital over two years. This includes 46 new staff in the new expanded ED once complete.

“It will expand Calvary’s capacity to perform elective surgery, with two new theatres being commissioned and 31 new staff to support the theatres as they come online – one theatre to come online in 2019-20 and the second theatre in 2020-21.

“And we will ensure more urology services are delivered at Calvary Public Hospital with an expanded service to meet the growing demand for urology surgery in the ACT, with four new staff.

“Expanding these services at Calvary will help get people off the waiting list, and allow additional minor day procedures to be carried out at the hospital, and for these surgical services to be co-located with outpatient services,” Minister Fitzharris said.

These new services and infrastructure will see an additional $40.5 million investment in Calvary Public Hospital over the next four years.

Free local health care for the Inner North at new walk-in centre

The ACT Government is delivering on our promise for a new walk-in centre for the Inner North, completing the network of five nurse-led walk-in centres across the ACT.

The new walk-in centre will be co-located at the Dickson Community Health Centre along Dickson Place, providing health care closer to home for Inner North residents.

The new walk-in centre will be located in the Dickson Group Centre and near the new light rail transport route, making it easy and convenient to access.

Our walk-in centres are more popular than ever, with the existing centres in Belconnen and Tuggeranong now seeing over 22,500 presentations a year. Since the new Gungahlin centre opened six months ago, it has already seen over 10,000 presentations for care.

Canberra's walk-in centres provide free and convenient health care for non-urgent injuries or illnesses – like coughs and colds or cuts and abrasions from minor accidents. Giving Canberrans access to nurse-led care not only means they can get seen sooner for these injuries or illnesses, but also helps take pressure off our Emergency Departments.

Executive Director of the Health Care Consumers' Association Darlene Cox welcomed the investment.

"The walk-in centres are a highly valued part of our health system," Ms Cox said.

"We are very pleased to see Government investment to build on the existing number of walk-in centres and provide access to this service for the growing population of the Inner North."

This investment will be used to upgrade the existing Dickson Community Health Centre, with four treatment rooms added for the new walk-in centre within the building's existing footprint.

The walk-in centre will complement the existing services provided at the Community Health Centre, which includes Maternal and Child Health (MACH) services.

Construction is already underway on Canberra's fourth walk-in centre in Weston Creek, which is due to be operational by the end of this year. With the location now decided for the new Inner North Walk-in Centre, this is planned to start taking patients in late 2020.

This $9.8 million investment for the Inner North Walk-in Centre fully delivers on our commitment to grow the network of centres across Canberra to five, and is a Labor-Greens Parliamentary Agreement item.

By delivering more great community health care facilities today, we are growing the services and infrastructure Canberrans will need for better health and wellbeing in the years to come.

The right services, at the right place, at the right time: ACT Budget growing mental and justice health services for the future

The ACT Government is investing to deliver better mental health and justice health services in the ACT – ensuring more Canberrans can access the right services, where and when they need them.

Around one third of Canberrans will need mental health care at some stage in their lives. This means that our local services and facilities have to expand as our population grows so that all Canberrans can get the right help and support when it's needed.

Through the 2019-20 ACT Budget we are investing in both acute and community-based services, delivering better support for people experiencing severe mental health episodes and those managing chronic conditions.

This Budget also places an important focus on early intervention. Early intervention can make a real difference by improving lives, building resilience in our communities, keeping people well for longer, and reducing avoidable use of acute and crisis services.

New mental health initiatives delivered through this year's budget include:

- Planning for a new Police, Ambulance and Clinician Early Response
- Additional beds for Adult Mental Health Unit
- More mental health services at Canberra Hospital
- More support for mental health carers
- Diverting people with mental illness from the justice system
- Enhanced drug and alcohol services for detainees in the Alexander Maconochie Centre.

Planning for a new Police, Ambulance and Clinician Early Response

We will undertake planning and design work for a Police, Ambulance and Clinician Early Response (PACER) service to better support Canberrans experiencing acute mental health episodes. This will focus on designing an integrated service model which brings together police, ambulance paramedics and mental health clinicians to support the safe assessment and treatment of people experiencing acute mental health episodes, minimising both avoidable hospital presentations and contact with the justice system for people with mental health conditions.

More beds for the Adult Mental Health Unit

We are boosting allied health and nursing staff at the Adult Mental Health Unit at The Canberra Hospital. This will ensure inpatients are provided more comprehensive psychosocial care to support their recovery and management of their mental health, while also supporting stronger workforce development.

Expansion of Mental Health Consultation Liaison Services

We will expand the Mental Health Consultation Liaison Service to operate seven days a week. The expanded service will provide support to people with mental illness across The Canberra Hospital campus, with a particular focus on people admitted into medical and surgical wards and those presenting to the Emergency Department. The expanded service will ensure that mental health issues can be safely managed in general wards and will reduce pressure on acute inpatient mental health beds.

Expansion of eating disorder service

We will establish an Eating Disorders Specialist Clinical Hub and a community-based intervention support service to expand the range of eating disorder services available in the ACT and make these available to more Canberrans. Through this initiative we will also establish a project team to review current demand and plan for future service needs.

More mental health services at The Canberra Hospital

We will establish an Electroconvulsive Therapy service within the Adult Mental Health Unit at The Canberra Hospital. This new service will provide better access to necessary therapy for patients experiencing mental health issues like depression and psychosis.

Having a dedicated Electroconvulsive Therapy service at the AMHU will significantly improve access to this clinical service for patients, leading to reduced length of stay for inpatients and fewer relapses for people requiring maintenance therapy in the community.

More support for mental health carers

We are recruiting two Carer Engagement Clinicians to pilot a range of support and psychosocial education activities that will build capacity for the families and carers of people with mental health conditions. This investment recognises the stressors and challenges that mental health carers face and the impact this can have on their own health and wellbeing. This initiative will strengthen the resilience of carers and consumers and support the involvement of mental health carers in care and recovery planning.

Diverting more people with mental illness from the justice system

We will provide more staff to respond to the growing number of Canberrans with complex needs appearing before the ACT Courts, and support strengthening diversion processes away from the Courts where possible.

This initiative directly supports and integrates with the Government's agenda to 'build communities not prisons' – helping divert people from prison by supporting their mental health needs in the community. It wil also provide more capacity to deliver mental health assessments and supports at the Courts, which is often a place where Canberrans can experience particularly high levels of stress and administrative pressure.

Enhanced drug and alcohol services for detainees

In response to existing demand and feedback from the community sector regarding unmet need, we will boost resources for the Justice Health service to enhance drug and alcohol services at the Alexander Maconochie Centre. Recruiting additional specialised nursing staff will support an expansion of the existing opiate replacement treatment service and the delivery of a range of additional drug and alcohol services. Detainees will be able to access services seven days a week, and the service expansion will mean they are better supported to engage with their substance use issues while also forming essential linkages with counselling and services that may help them once released back into the community.

This $24.2 million package of investments will strengthen Canberra's mental and justice health services today and in the years to come. As our city grows, we are ensuring that the services and supports which help Canberrans with their mental health and wellbeing grow too.

Media: Minister Rattenbury will be made available for interview at 10:45am today at the Legislative Assembly on request. Photos, audio and interviews with community stakeholders will also be made available on request.

Investing in a more inclusive Canberra

The 2019-20 ACT Budget strengthens our investment in social services to see Canberra continue becoming even more inclusive.

Better services for older Canberrans

We recognise that as our city grows and our population ages, we need to strengthen our investment in better, more accessible services for older Canberrans. That's why we will be enhancing the provision of Seniors Cards and boosting the annual Seniors Week program through this year's Budget.

Improving frontline services through the Safer Families Levy

We are committed to tackling domestic and family violence in partnership with the community, which is why we introduced the Safer Families Levy in 2016.

As the initial four-year initiatives funded through the levy reach completion, we are updating our approach to continue the focus on frontline services while providing funding for new initiatives to further innovate and improve our response to domestic and family violence.

New initiatives to be funded in 2019 will focus on delivering family-centred responses for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander families impacted by family violence; reducing the risk of deaths from family violence; supporting pregnant women at risk of domestic and family violence; extending the Room4Change program to help prevent family violence; and training ACT Government frontline workers to respond to family violence.

Supporting people with disability

The ACT has led the country in delivering the National Disability Insurance Scheme, and we will continue to invest in support for Canberrans with disability as states and territories move to the full scheme arrangements from 1 July 2019. About 6,800 Canberrans are now accessing individual packages of services and supports through the scheme, and we are committed to doing our part to ensure the NDIS is fully funded to deliver better outcomes for participants.

At the same time as we are growing the ACT's contribution to the NDIS, we will maintain existing disability services that are not eligible as in-kind contributions under the scheme. This will ensure these services remain free and accessible for Canberrans with disability who are not currently receiving an individual support package through the NDIS.

This will include continuing to invest in the Children and Young People's Equipment Loan Scheme, the Child Development Service, the ACT Taxi Subsidy Scheme, the Integrated Service Response Program and Rehabilitation, Aged and Community Care supports.

Stepping up for our kids

Through this year's Budget we are boosting our investment in the continuum of care under the out of home care strategy A Step up for Our Kids, supporting children and young people who cannot live safely at home. We will continue to work collaboratively with foster and kinship carers and our service partners to embed a therapeutic, trauma-informed model of care for our most vulnerable children and young people.

We will also continue implementing recommendations of the Our Booris, Our Way Review to address the over-representation of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander children in out of home care. This will include more training and workforce development to increase the cultural proficiency of staff as well as implementing the National Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Child Placement Principles.

Therapeutic Care Children's Court

We want to deliver the best outcomes possible for children if they are involved in legal matters. So through this year's Budget we will establish a Therapeutic Care Court for care and protection matters in the Children's Court.

This will provide for court-led interventions for parents whose children have been removed from their care or are at risk of being removed from their care. The Therapeutic Care Court will seek to deliver the best outcomes for our children and their families by addressing parental substance abuse issues, parenting capacity issues, family violence and mental health issues.

We will also support this investment by bolstering Legal Aid ACT to provide a new full time duty solicitor service in the Children's Court. This will provide extended services for parents, grandparents and guardians who are involved in care and protection proceedings.

Importantly, these measures will help reduce the risk of children and young people entering or remaining in the criminal justice system and support their families to remain connected and together where it is safe for them to do so.

Supporting children and young people at risk

We will continue working to reduce young people's contact with the youth justice system and provide early support and programs that reduce the likelihood of offending later in life. We will also increase our investment in the safety and security of young people and staff at Bimberi Youth Justice Centre by upgrading CCTV throughout the centre.

Warrumbul court

The ACT Government is committed to reducing the over-representation of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people in our justice system. As part of this commitment, we will invest further in the Warrumbul Court to support its handling of more cases involving children and young people. The Warrumbul Court provides culturally-appropriate sentencing options, helping to reconnect Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Canberrans with their culture and avoid ongoing contact with the justice system.

Through the 2019-20 ACT Budget we are making big investments in early intervention and specialist services to help see Canberra become even more inclusive in the years to come.

Digital healthcare transformation gets citizen-centric

Healthcare in Canberra is set to be transformed with the ACT Government moving to mature its digital health footprint.

As part of the 2019-20 ACT Budget $106 million will be invested over eight years to introduce a new Digital Health Record across the public health system.

The major investment follows the release of the ACT's new Digital Health Strategy in May and the $41 million delivered in last year's Budget (2018-19) to position the ACT to take advantage of new technologies and advances in health care into the future.

The funding also adds to the investments the ACT Government is making in state-of-the-art health infrastructure, such as the SPIRE Centre.

Minister for Health and Wellbeing Meegan Fitzharris said effective healthcare is timely healthcare and a key part of delivering a territory-wide health system – from our hospitals to our Walk-in Centres and Community Health Centres – is through a fully integrated digital health environment.

“We want our healthcare system to provide the best possible care to patients. That means, ensuring we can adapt new digital technologies as they evolve to improve health services and clinical care,” Minister Fitzharris said.

“The new Digital Health Record will be centred on the person, rather than focused around clinical speciality or treatment location.

“It will give our doctors, nurses and other health professionals access to the most up to date patient information, enabling them to make more timely and accurate decisions at the point of care.

“People will also be able to access their own information through a portal or mobile app to enable them to manage their interactions with the public health system. In the future this may mean people may be able to talk to their healthcare team through virtual appointments, review or schedule appointments, access patient education and contribute information to their record.

“The Digital Health Record will ensure health information is at the fingertips of those that need it and is an investment the Government is making to future-proof our health care system.”

Chief Information Officer for the ACT Health Directorate Peter O’Halloran welcomed the funding.

“The Digital Health Record project will completely transform our health system. It is not only an exciting development but a critically important one, when it comes to maintaining a modern, sustainable health system,” Mr O’Halloran said.

“ICT systems – through innovations in medical technologies – have evolved so rapidly that over time more than 250 different systems have been established here in the ACT.

“These rapid and innovative changes mean we have not been able to take full advantage of new technologies as they become available because our digital environment can be quite complex to navigate.

“That’s why, this investment in one comprehensive Digital Health Record will be fundamental to our future health system.

“It will ensure one system of recording patient information across our hospitals and health services and support other recent digital systems that we have put in place and that have significantly improved clinical practices and processes.”

Canberra Health Services Chief Executive Officer Bernadette McDonald said the new Digital Health Record would make a big difference to patients and clinicians.

“The Digital Health Record from my experience is a huge change, allowing us to capture all the patient’s information in one place,” Ms McDonald said.

“It will provide us with real-time data that we can turn into clinical improvements and feed into research, which will improve patient care.”

The Digital Health Record project will be rolled out over an eight-year period to ensure a smooth transition of clinical information into one system for clinicians, staff, patients and carers.

A key factor in progressing this project will be meeting the community’s expectations about privacy of information and managing patient confidentiality, which is high priority for success. The ACT was one of the earliest adopters of the My Health Record and as digital systems become increasingly sophisticated, so too do the privacy functions which are increasingly building up the protections consumers expect in this digital age.
