What is a cooling tower system?

A cooling tower system, for the purposes of registration in the ACT, is where a single body of cooling water is circulated within either one or multiple cooling towers. Where multiple towers exist within a cooling tower system the towers are connected by pipework and the cooling water is circulated between the towers.

Usually, multiple towers connected within a system will only have a single chemical dosing point. If the towers do not share a common water body through pipework, they are considered separate systems and will require submission of a separate registration application. Separate systems will also have separate chemical dosing points.

For example:

The system shown above as 'Building 1' has 1 system comprising 3 towers.

The system shown above as 'Building 2' has 2 systems in total. 1 system comprises 2 towers, and the other system comprises 1 tower.

Section A: Registered person type

The registration is issued to the person(s) who will have the overall responsibility for the maintenance and day to day running of the system and who would be the first point of contact in the event of a disease outbreak or emergency. The registered person(s) will also be responsible for any contraventions of the Public Health Act 1997.

Trusts will not be registered, corporations operating as trustees for a trust will be registered in the corporation name only.

Applications listing a partnership as the registered person will not be accepted. If your business is operated by a partnership, one or more of the individuals of the partnership will need to be listed.

Sections B or C of this application form must be separately completed for each individual listed as a registered person. Extra copies of sections B and C are available at www.health.act.gov.au/hps or by contacting the Health Protection Service.
